PRINTING METHODS

SCREEN PRINTING

Screen printing is the most popular printing method for lanyards because of its prompt and convenient process. With screen printing the imprint is transferred to the material by squeezing ink through a very fine “screen” mesh which embodies the imprint information. Screen printed lanyards are normally printed in less than 4 pot colours on one or both sides.

OFFSET PRINTING

Offset printing is a special silk screen printing technique applied for multi-coloured or full coloured logo. It normally costs more than spot-colour screen printing. However, it’s capable of achieving tonal result and shading for full colour images.

SUBLIMATION PRINTING

Also known as heat transfer printing. Customized logo is molded then transferred to a piece of paper using dye sublimation inks. The paper is placed on the lanyard, then pressed and heated by machine, and finally the image is absorbed into the fabric. Generally, sublimation printing is applied to white material. Full image can be printed to the edges of the fabric. Major disadvantages are the colour variation in the matching process, also setup takes longer than screen print and setup cost is high as to small quantity.

3D PRINTING

The process of 3D printing results in embossed text from the surface of the material which makes a logo stand out very well. The printing is thicker than normal printing, and it also give a textured touch.

SILICONE PRINTING

The process of silicone printing is similar to silk screen printing but it uses silicone ink. Compared to silk screen printing, the cost is higher due to more expensive material and longer process. However, it’s eco friendly and it gives a nice rubbery texture to the print with a glossy coating. CMYK print is also available with silicone printing.

GLITTER PRINTING

Glitter printing makes the logo shiny by adding glittering pieces in the ink. Your logo will stand out from the printed material with glitter printing.

GLOW IN THE DARK PRINTING

With specially made ink, the print glows in the dark in a greenish colour. It would be wonderful if your logo is eye-catchy in the darkness.

FOAM PRINTING

Foam printing is similar to screen printing. Logo will be printed using special material and then heated up to get foamed. Foam printing is suitable for large sized logo.

THERE'S NO BUSINESS TO BE DONE ON A DEAD PLANET

To take initiatives to protect our beloved world, we could start from small steps like switching to friendly yet cost efficient material: During Cork production, "Only the bark is gently stripped to harvest the cork. The tree continues to live and grow. The sustainability of production and the easy recycling of cork products and by-products are two of its most distinctive aspects.
